 Anotation During 2019, the wider Croatian public finally opened the painful and for two and a half decades almost silent topic of the death and murder of children in wartime Vukovar.
 In the book Mama, ne vidim nebo (Mom, I can't see the sky), she told stories about thirty-four children killed during the fighting as a result of shelling or brutally killed in a war crime that is difficult for the normal human mind to imagine, especially when it takes place over children.

Subject Misali -- Hrvatska -- 14. st.
UDC 272-282.7(497.5) * 091:003.349.1(497.5)

Anotation After a year of long preparation, in collaboration with the Department of the Čakavian Parliament of Roč, the Old Church Slavonic Institute and the Mosaic of Books, the 'Missal of Prince Novak' from 1368 was published, one of our most beautiful and valuable manuscripts. Glagolitic.

It was handwritten by Prince Novak Disislavić as a votive gift to the church in which he will be buried. How beautiful and valuable this book was considered by her contemporaries is best evidenced by the fact that it served as one of the main templates for the first Croatian printed book - "Missal by the Law of the Roman Court" from 1483 - printed only 28 years after Gutenberg's Bible. "Missal of Prince Novak" is a handwritten Glagolitic book without which it is impossible to describe the history of Croatian culture. Although it dates back to the seventh century of existence, it is still a legible and clear testimony to the enviable skill of its scribe, the givenness of the time in which it was created and read and the peculiarities of the Glagolitic book within the European cultural environment.

In order to bring today's readers closer to one of the most important books in the history of Croatia, this magnificent edition was prepared in the publishing endeavor of the year in cooperation with the Department of the Čakavian Parliament Roč, the Old Church Slavonic Institute and the Mosaic of Books. Thus, "Missal of Prince Novak" was printed for the first time after more than 650 years and is available to the wider Croatian public.

This limited collector's edition contains: a facsimile of the original "Missal of Prince Novak" from 1368, reproductions of as many as 480 initials and six miniatures, most of which are gilded, hand-embroidered covers made of the finest calfskin and paper that meets the highest quality standards, accompanying book with the most important facts and other interesting facts about Novak's missal for which the texts were written by renowned Croatian academics, scientists and experts, a protective cover made to measure for the book and cotton gloves for leafing. Circulation is limited to 150 copies and will not be repeated - each copy of this issue is numbered unique.

This luxury edition is intended for book lovers, collectors, scientists, Glagolitic scholars and all others who know how to appreciate and like to own editions of national and cultural importance.

The set of Misal kneza Novaka includes:

- faithful facsimile of the original Missal of Prince Novak from 1368 (544 pages, 245 x 320 mm)
- accompanying book with the most important facts and other interesting facts about Novak's missal written by renowned Croatian academics, scientists and experts
- protective cover made to measure book
- cotton scouring gloves

Each copy of the book is unique, imported into leather and numbered.

Anotation Tanjug photojournalist (Telegraph Agency of New Yugoslavia) Branko Savić, following Yugoslav Army units moving towards Zagreb in early May 1945, took 596 photographs documenting the period from 4 to 17 May that year. They "cover" the partisan advance towards the capital of Croatia, from their entry into the Ustasha camp Jasenovac, all the way to the entrance to Zagreb and the arrival of the president of ZAVNOH, the poet Vladimir Nazor, in Zagreb. These photographs have not been known to the public so far and are published in this book for the first time. A photomonography composed of 365 selected photographs is accompanied by two introductory studies.

 In this hilarious mix of crime, Greek tragedy and homeopathic futurism, the world is ruled by algorithms, and people (again) know where they belong - far below the "gods". But it is futurism without a future (the future has already happened, and the unknown is the past - because it is constantly changing), a crime in which murders have yet to happen. Characters who look like Bogart, Bacall, Bergman and Warhol, but they are not, ...

 Zagreb : Sandorf, 2020.

 Nada Gašić's third novel, Devet života gospođe Adele (Nine Lives of Mrs. Adele) consists of ten chapters that function as separate stories or episodes of one series, one fairy tale about two evils and one glass egg.
 In this novel, Nada Gašić shows mastery by combining fairytale, grotesque, spy realism, comedy and fantasy, reaching into the already forgotten lexical treasury and writing hyperrealistic dialogues that are heard and clearly outline agrammer characters and their dramas.

Dječak za zatvor (The Boy for Prison), Željko Ivanjek's confessional novel (1954), is composed of the writer's memories and fragments that he learned from his relatives or simply imagined. Hence in the novel two versions of the narrator's name and two narrators, which raises the suspicion that biographical or fictional stories may be more faithful than autobiographical.

 The book talks about the diversity of melancholic temperament and that everyone is unique in their mental pain, in turmoil, doubt, torment and suffering. An abused woman from the neighborhood, a gay immigrant in search of true love, a disguised bulimic, an alcoholic, a lonely solitary confinement, a despised fat man, and even a successful entrepreneur go through concise stories about the simple fate of being under the "black sun".

Duh zloduha (The spirit of the demon), a touching story about Stasha and Masha, finds its foothold in the biblical story of Abel and Cain, but author's Abel and Cain are young women, one beautiful, smart and kind, the other frog-like. Ivan Aralica, a great stylist and narrator, a great connoisseur of women's psychology and the Dalmatian climate, a writer of unusual, almost timeless serenity, told a rich and multi-layered story that reflects the joy of creating and telling stories.

Anotation Gušterov rep (Lizard's Tail) is about women and men trapped in their roles, from which only a few manage to free themselves and realize their true selves. Whether trapped in a maze of bureaucracy, in a tram that leads them to certain death, or in their own past burdened by war or childhood misfortune, the heroes of these fifteen tales try to find their place in a world that forces them to a constant choice of endless possibilities.

Anotation Morpho amathonte is the name of a rare species of blue butterfly that in Nada Topic's novel becomes a symbol of intimate search and contemplation. The personal stories of the characters written in living poetic language complement and intertwine, forming a complex whole that reflects a contemporary moment marked by migration, multiculturalism, but also visible and invisible violence.

Anotation Pod oba Sunca (Under Both Suns), a novel narrated through the voices of four protagonists, is the story of a circle of life that we draw ourselves and attempts to step out of that circle. Ognjen Spahić once again shows all the splendor of narrative talent and enviable ability to create powerful, memorable characters deeply colored by local history. It is a novel about people in the shackles of their own decisions that they can never get rid of.

Anotation Pristanište (The harbor) is a dense tale of love and delusion, of loneliness and perseverance; a story told in a superior, thoughtful style that flows and conquers. It is one of those books that is so suggestive that the line between reader and protagonist can be lost for a moment. A book that makes you rethink the things you thought were resolved, which reminds us that while the opposite sometimes seems, nothing is actually resolved.

Mihaljević is convincing, precise psychologically, socially and dramaturgically, unobtrusive in that he seems to eavesdrop on what people are saying and as if he is reading their thoughts.

 Anotation The President Shop is a marvelous, timeless book that sweeps between the personal and the panoramic as it asks, Does every family, or country, contain an axis, around which the rest of it spins? Can you hear the voice of a stone? How clearly can anyone see the past or future? For which tyrannies have we been unwittingly waving flags?" (Catherine Lacey)

 Anotation Vjetrogonja Babukić i njegovo doba (Vjetrogonja Babukić and his time) is a contemporary picaresque novel that reflects our fears, anxieties, obsession with sex, gossip, food and drink ... Miljenko Jergović wrote a work in which eros and thanatos, possible and impossible, touch and merge as in Rabelais's, Swift's or Heller's books, and his windmill Babukić, at the same time caring and vain, fearful and brave, is a true hero of our time.

 Anotation NOVI KVADRAT (New square) is a cult group on our art scene, the name of this group of authors has become synonymous with comics in this area. It has been exactly 40 years since the group ceased operations. In most art encyclopedias and other books on art published to date, the work of this group has been poorly researched. The members of the NOVI KVADRAT are world famous today. Mirko Ilić is a distinguished designer and lecturer in New York, Igor Kordej was awarded the highest French Order of Culture, Krešimir Zimonić and Joško Marušić won prestigious awards at animated film festivals around the world, Radovan Devlić began work on comics for Glenat (a famous French publisher)) but his death interrupted him, Kunc published books that were also published in Slovenia, and now he is preparing a book for the largest Chinese publisher, etc.
